

COLOR POEM

BY WILLIAM NIU

RED

Red feels like a red and warm blanket a kid is wearing in the night of Christmas.

Red sounds like a blazing hot fire burning in the fireplace in the night of Christmas.

Red smells like a yummy sausage that is just toasted.

Red tastes like a juicy, sour tomato.

Red looks like a kid's face after he is embarrass.

ORANGE

Orange feels like a bumpy gummies bears.

Orange sounds like a baby parrot making funny noises.

Orange smells like a boiled, sweet pumpkin.

Orange tastes like a jar of thick, yummy honey.

Orange looks like the sun when it is ready to set.

YELLOW

Yellow feels like the hot blazing sun shining on a sandy beach.

Yellow sounds like the wind rustling the delicate leafs at the end of August.

Yellow smells like a slippery soap sitting near the sink.

Yellow tastes like a soft, juicy mango.

Yellow looks like a surfboard resting in the sun.

GREEN

Green feels like new grasses on the ground when I have a picnic in spring.

Green sounds like a juicy caterpillar crawling through the grass.

Green smells like fresh apples growing on a tree.

Green tastes like a broccoli on in a salad.

Green looks like a tree that almost connected to each other in a forest.

BLUE

Green feels like new grasses on the ground when I have a picnic in spring.

Green sounds like a juicy caterpillar crawling through the grass.

Green smells like fresh apples growing on a tree.

Green tastes like a broccoli on in a salad.

Green looks like a tree that almost connected to each other in a forest.

PURPLE

Purple feels like the bumpy surface of a rock.

Purple sounds like a busy hummingbird fly across field after field.

Purple smells like the fresh grape juice oozing out a grape as it fell down from a rattan.

Purple tastes like the flesh of a juicy eggplant.

Purple looks like the inside of a sweet potato that is ready to eat.

BLACK

Black feels like the back day on a rainy weather.

Black sounds like tar spilling out of a bin.

Black smells like the paint in a busy art room.

Black tastes like the warm brownies on a lunch table that had just been baked.

Black looks like the smelly smoke that had come out the chimney of a colossal factory.

WHITE

White feels like soft and fluffy downy of a swan.

White sounds like the crack of a floating ice.

White smells like sticky paints that are not dried.

White tastes like a piece of icy snow.

White looks like a cup of the juice of a coconut.

GOLD

Gold feels like the force sunshine on my face.

Gold sounds like a coin fell out a leather wallet.

Gold smells like a jewelry inside a rich treasure box.

Gold tastes like a shiny cheese under the sun.

Gold look like the sun light reflected of a round mirror.
